

The Knight's Table

Welcome to The Madeleine Brennan School 😊

Inclusion at school means feeling like one belongs and being cared for. One way to feel inclusion in a school environment is when other students are considerate and inviting to engage in different activities. Teachers play an important role here by providing equal opportunity to everyone and treating each student fairly. When a person feels included, he/she gains confidence and loves to attend school.

The other indicator of inclusion in a school environment is friendship that includes acceptance and respect. Small things such as saying "hello," working in teams, helping newcomers, can make a huge impact.

When everyone treats everyone respectfully and includes them, the atmosphere becomes more positive and conducive to learning and friendship.

Being a member of the community at IS 201 involves feeling included in that all members of our community belong and are important. Teachers create an atmosphere of team work and inclusion among students through group tasks and collaboration in class. In addition, students include others in class activities by inviting peers to take part in them, by being friendly when a peer does not have anyone to sit with, and even by saying hello to them in the halls.

Most importantly, we promote kindness, respect and teamwork at IS 201. Programs such as S.E.A.L. Team promote care among students and making good decisions for others. Being treated equally and inclusively makes students more self-confident and creates positive relations between them and makes them happy to be at school.
